“Upbeat and effervescent” RnR Magazine

Genre: Putting Rock ‘n’ Roll into Folk

Live Lineup: Solo (Guitar, Vocals, Stomp-Box), band in development

Sounds like: Elvis Presley, Johnny Cash, Bob Dylan

Anglo-German songwriter Ludwig Wright is a curator of good times. With sing-along melodies he crafts a captivating atmosphere while putting Rock ‘n’ Roll into Folk. Musically the energetic sum of Elvis Presley, Johnny Cash and Bob Dylan he combines a charming stage presence with a strong, clear voice. He effortlessly mixes musical styles and as a seasoned performer, has played street shows all around Europe and over 300 concerts besides having performed at the Edinburgh Fringe and Rudolstadt Festival.

Ludwig Wright, who after living in England for several years now resides in Berlin and has a British father and a Bavarian mother, found his way to music with the movie “The Blues Brothers”. The performances, the songs, the energy – he soaked it all up and knew he wanted to be a musician.

Ludwig Wright has released three albums: “HOPE” (2018), “LOVE” (2020) and “Turn of Tides or Where the Waves Come From” (2023). Latter received four stars from RnR Magazine, was called a “colourful kaleidoscope of earwormy song pearls” by Schall Magazin and was shortlisted by the German Record Critics’ Award. Additionally, Ludwig Wright co-wrote a song for the fourth German cinematic adaption of the novel “The Flying Classroom”. Currently he is working on his fourth album, which will come out early 2027.
